Solatube International Expands and is Joined by Pario Innovation Center

VISTA, Calif., July 28, 2015 – Solatube® International, the worldwide leader in manufacturing and marketing tubular daylighting devices, announced that it has expanded its facility to increase its in-house manufacturing capabilities. Additionally, Pario Innovation Center (Solatube's innovation partner) has moved directly behind the company's headquarters in Vista, Calif., into a 50,000-square-foot building.

"Our business is booming and we needed additional production and warehouse space to accommodate the worldwide demand for our products," said Robert E. Westfall, president of Solatube International.

"We are committed to maintaining manufacturing jobs in Southern California and the United States," Westfall added. "We are particularly proud to continue to have our high-technology, research and development operations based in North County in San Diego."

There is tremendous synergy between Solatube International and Pario. On the innovation side, Pario is constantly pushing the boundaries of daylighting technology and in working with Solatube International, the company brings visionary new products into reality and out to the marketplace.
